Example 1. What current limiting resistor value should you use if you have one LED and want to power it with a supply voltage of $V_s = 3.8V$? To calculate the current limiting resistor, you first need to look in the datasheet (always RTFM first!) for the LED's recommended forward voltage and forward current specifications. In this example, they are 3.1V and 30mA respectively.

Going forward, electrification is becoming core to powertrain evolutions. To support the automotive industry in this transition towards ever more environmentally friendly mobility, the SIA POWERTRAIN Organising Committee, in cooperation with the APE Organising Committee, has decided to merge both conferences to a new automotive main yearly event in France named SIA POWER TRAIN & ELECTRONICS.

Junction Temperature : This section is a description of the junction temperature. The junction temperature rises in proportion to the current consumption. The proportionality constant for this is $R_{th(j-a)}$. When the same current is applied, the junction temperature also rises as the ambient temperature goes up. This diminishes the applicable current subsequently.
